

To Whom It May Concern,

I am writing to support the visa application of Kasun Prabath, who is a recent graduate of the Department of Information Technology at the University of Sri Jayewardenepura. I have known Kasun for the past four years, as he was a student in my undergraduate computer science courses.

During his time at university, Kasun was an outstanding student. He consistently achieved high grades, and he was awarded the Dean's List every semester. He was also very active in extracurricular activities, and he won several national and international awards for his work in developing new software products.

In addition to his academic achievements, Kasun is also a highly motivated and driven individual. He is always eager to learn new things, and he is always willing to help others. He is also a team player, and he is always willing to go the extra mile to get the job done.

I believe that Kasun would be an asset to any company. He is intelligent, hardworking, and dedicated. He is also a valuable asset to the Sri Lankan community. I highly recommend him for a visa to the United States, where he can continue his education and pursue his career goals.

Sincerely,
